PANHANDLE EXCURSION

The To the National Convention at St. Louis,

Kelly, in the lockup at Bridgeport on the 25th of last December. He complained of having a sore arm; it was burned, and the witness bought him some cosmoline. This was between the 25th and 29th. Kelly was discharged on condition that he would leave town, and the Mayor saw him get on the train and the Mayor saw him get on the train and start for Bellaire.

Marshal John W. Stuff identified Kelly, whom he had arrested last Christmas, and he corroborated Mayor Junkins' testimony about the sore arm. Mr. Sommerville called James T. Conlin, and as he did not respond, went after him and brought him in. Mr. Conlin is the man at whose brickyard Kelly claimed to have been in January. Mr. Conlin said he had seen Kelly, the last time of which he was positive being on February 11. He saw him in January also, between the first and the twenty-eighth. Kelly kept the fires up for him in his brickyard several nights in January and also on two Sundays in that month, neither of which was the first Sunday nor the last Sunday of January; it was two successive Sundays, but he could not say whether these were the second or third or the third and fourth, but it was one or the other. There were others there; he did not know whether he came with them. He could not say whether Kelly was hurtin anyway at that time, but he did some work there. He was there most of the time between these Sundays, but not all the time.

Cross examined by Capt, Dovener, he stid he could not say where Kelly was surface and proportion or importance of doing something. No better advertisement of this city and this to be an affair of no small proportions or importance of the time between these Sundays, but not all the time.

Cross examined by Capt, Dovener, he said he cocked not say where Kelly was some well defined action taken looking to ageneral display from here. With he various glass houses, iron works, botteries etc., located here, it will be a time between these sundays, but not all the time.

Cross examined by Capt, Dovener, he said he could not say where Kelly was on January 14, but he was at the brick yard on the evening of that day and kept up the fires the next day, the 15th. The witness received a letter asking if he remembered a fellow named Bob. He did not know him by that name, but his boys said one of these men was called "P. A. Bob," and from their description he recognized this man. There might have been something wrong with Kelly—a wound; he did not examine him. Kelly left about the 28th, and came back on the 9th or 10th of February. The witness knew he was there came back on the 9th or 10th of Febru-ary. The witness knew he was there on the 11th by a business transaction that day. It took the witness a long drive to the railroad and then four hours or so to ride from Finleyville. A man might get from Wheeling to Monon-gahela City or from there to here in four hours. He did not know whether any-body came with Kelly. They did no work and so he did not take much notice to the time the others came or went and could not now fix it.

notice to the time the others came or went and could not now fix it. Sheriff Handlan was inquired of as to the date on which the requisition papers from this State were sent to Columbus. He said he delivered them himself April 3.

Isaac M. Sutton, of Benwood, was recalled by the defense. Mr. Sommerville asked him when he came to Benwood, and he said op the 15th of April, a year ago. He was not arrested for any offense; not for stealing a cow. This was here objected to and ruled out.

Mr. Sommerville—We rest, your honor.

Christie, in answer to his questions, said he did not remember whether he told Sheriff Handlan that he read the letter he wrote at Newark to Kelly, he was not positive that he did read it to Kelly, but thought he did.

He was not at Professor Gleason's horse show, in this city, on the 13th of January, 1888, and did not have a fuss there about a seat.
Capt. Dovener reserved the right to recall Christie on this point after he had seen another party. He was given till 2 p. m. to arrange for evidence in rebuttal, and court took a recess until that time.

After Mr. Exley was excused, Capt. Jasper, train dispatcher in the B. & O. office here, was put on the stand by the prosecution, and inquired of concerning the arrival and departure of trains on the main line and Pittsburgh division at the time of the murder, the idea being to show that Kelly could come here from Monongahela City and return in one night.

Capt. Porter Smith was next recalled, and asked if Christie did not "choke up" in the jail at Mt. Vernon when asked about the Glenn murder. This was ruled out.

The evidence all in, the jury was given about the Glenn murder. This was ruled out.

The evidence all in, the jury was given a brief breathing spell and allowed to stretch their legs in the library room over the court, and about 4 o'clock they were recalled, and the argument to the jury by counsel began.

Prosecuting Attorney Jordan opened with a speech on behalf of the prosecution, which was spoken of by those who heard it as one of the ablest efforts of his long career. Perhaps the most weighty part of his remarks was that in which he laid down the rule of law as to the weight of circumstantial evidence, saying that if a maa could be convicted only on direct and positive testimony.

and half a dozen other members were present, and spent about an hour discussing various matters and the reprehensible apathy of the other members, and then went home. Among the papers that were on the table awaiting attention was a communication from Major J. C. Alderson, one of the Commissioners from this State of the Cincinnati Centennial Exposition, accompanying a letter from Mr. Goodall, of Cincinnati, Superintendent of the Department of States, both in reference to a display that ought to be made at the coming Exposition by the people of this city and this end of the State. A movement to make a display has been started in the lower part of the State, and is being pushed. The result will be a very creditable showing. As yet nothing has been done in this end, despite the fact that Major Alderson has been urging the importance of doing something. No better advertisement of this city's industries and advantages could be had than by a good display at this Centennial, which is to be an affair of no small proportions or importance. It is understood that one large iron firm here has expressed a willingness to provide a display equal to the best of them, was some well defined action taken looking to a general display from here. With the various glass houses, iron works, potteries etc., located here, it will be a shame if some display is not gotten up.

He was accompanied this time by Mr. George P. Bissell, of Hartford, a prominent Eastern millionaire banker and capitalist, who is one of the financial backers of the bridge scheme. Capt. John McLure drove him about the city showing him the route of the Wheeling & Harrisburg as granted by Council and the various industrial establishments. Mr. Bissell expressed himself as being very much pleased and impressed with Wheeling and her business and industrial life. He has been over the entire route of the proposed extension from Bowerston here and is of the firm belief that the work to be done will prove a valuable and paying investment.
